O
nce again, a sincere ‘thank you’ to each of the Affiliate Members who took the time to submit an Annual Report to the Affiliate Council. Your efforts are most appreciated. Thirty-three of the forty-seven Affiliates responded to the call for an update on your activities throughout 2009. This is an impressive response, to say the least. We know your efforts are carefully documented to highlight your organizations’ finest hours.

Many of you heeded our request to keep your reports brief and to the point and submitted these and any supporting documents electronically to the IAFP staff. (No, Terry [Peters], there was not a secret code to submitting a report, but thank you so much for your experience in report submission!!)

The IAFP staff and the Council Chair are looking to simplify and streamline the process of reporting. Over the years, I’ve been a bit frustrated with the submission forms provided by IAFP. Hence, I’m soliciting ideas to make the situation better while keeping the forms flexible enough for you, as users, to showcase the best of your organizations.

The task of selecting award winners from all of the submissions was daunting. The job may be too much for a three-member judging team. I know that my colleagues were a bit overwhelmed with the amount of information submitted. I thank them most sincerely for their attention to detail and their time commitment.

So please, give us your ideas regarding submissions. Perhaps a more extensive panel is needed for Award selection? I do know that we all worked hard and weighed each submission carefully. Bring your ideas to the Affiliate Council Meeting during the IAFP 2010 in Anaheim. This meeting is approaching quickly even though thirteen months will have separated us from IAFP 2009 in Grapevine, Texas. We hope that all of the affiliates will provide representation at this important meeting.

Affiliates have always been an important part of IAFP. This was most evident during a recent Board Meeting and Strategic Planning Session. Looking back at our history, there was a time (post-WWII) that travel was restricted and Affiliates were the primary venue for supporting the goals of the organization. While the world was in crisis, food safety was no less important. We currently face similar ‘budget’ restrictions and food safety has become a high priority. Many food safety professionals and supporting organizations are faced with difficult choices as to where to use precious funds. We believe that each IAFP Annual Meeting provides us with the most value for our organizations and companies. And it is our intent that IAFP 2010 will provide that high level of value for all.

Finally, as a reminder, please consider donating an item for the always popular “Silent Auction” at IAFP 2010 (please bring your donation with you to Anaheim). This is an important fundraiser and your items are much appreciated by the organization and bidders alike! If you have questions about submitting an item, contact Susan Smith, our IAFP staff contact person.

Thanks again to everyone for your support of the IAFP Affiliate Council and for your outstanding involvement in your organizations this past year! I am pleased to turn the Affiliate Council Chair over to David Lloyd at IAFP 2010.

And I look forward to seeing you in Anaheim in a few short weeks!

Very best regards,

Very best regards,
Tonya Gray
Past President, Georgia Association for Food Protection

OCCUPATION | Program Consultant, Environmental Health Branch, state of Georgia

QUALIFICATIONS | Tonya Gray is a Registered Sanitarian/Environmental Health Specialist by the Georgia Registration Board and the National Environmental Health Association. She was standardized by the FDA in 2003, 2005, and 2009 as a Certified Inspection/Training Officer. Tonya holds an undergraduate degree in Biology from Wesleyan College in Macon and a Master’s in Public Administration from the University of West Georgia in Carrollton.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS | Tonya has worked for the state of Georgia for 25 years. The first 13 years were with the Georgia Department of Agriculture. She has spent the past 12 years with the Georgia Department of Human Resources, now known as the Georgia Department of Community Health.

Tonya’s career began in 1983 as a Wastewater Lab Analyst for the city of Carrollton, Georgia. In 1985, she moved to the Georgia Department of Agriculture, Consumer Protection, where she conducted inspections in retail and wholesale food protection. In 1997, she began working with the Coweta County Environmental Health Department, where she performed onsite wastewater inspections, well water investigations, indoor air quality investigations, rabies control, and food service inspections. During that time, she was a member of the Georgia Food Rules and Regulations Committee, where she helped update rules to a recent FDA model Food Code. In 1997, Tonya transferred to the state office where she currently standardizes the Georgia food service inspectors and provides interpretation, training, and standardization of food service rules to food inspection staff throughout the state. She continues to work with industry, consumers, and regulators in a collaborative effort to protect Georgia’s food supply.

PORTFOLIO | A member of IAFP, Tonya is a Past President of the Georgia Association for Food Protection (2008-2009). She is also Past President of the Georgia Environmental Health Association (2004-2005) and was awarded the Member of the Year honor in 2007. She currently serves as Georgia’s Delegate for the Conference for Food Protection.

PERSONAL ENDEAVOURS | Married since 1989 to John Gray, they are parents to Davis, a cadet at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, CO; and Amelia, a fifth form student at the Portsmouth Abbey School, Portsmouth, RI. Tonya is co-owner of a dance studio in Newnan, Georgia and, along with dancing, enjoys music and spending time outdoors.
Winner’s Circle Profile: Southern California Association for Food Protection

Keeping True to Food Safety
By Margaret Burton, SCAFP Contact

Remember the story of “The Princess and the Pea?” That one pea, buried under layers of mattresses, was distressing to her and kept her awake all night. The same holds true for an oyster getting that one piece of irritating sand in its shell. The mantle covers the irritant with the same nacre that is used to make the shell, thus easing the pain. One of this author’s irritations is people calling the Sierra the ‘Sierras.’ Sierra is plural – there is no ‘s’ on the end! The other irritation is depicting things that go against protecting the food source.

As defenders of the food supply, one of our duties is to train and educate other people on what should and shouldn’t be done regarding food. One huge mistake we often see is when photos show obvious food safety errors (and pretending they’re acceptable). These mistakes may be by creative ad people who want to capture an interesting picture but don’t have the necessary ‘food safety eyes.’ Photos like this also might be taken by undercover investigators to show worst case scenarios. Or these types of poses may be a simple oversight by someone who doesn’t actually know better. It’s our job to ensure that best practices are depicted and that investigators find no reason to point out poor food safety practices.

To illustrate this, take a look at the picture to the left and think about the bad example that’s depicted. Notice that these ‘executives’ are sitting on the product boxes – and with their feet placed on top of the boxes? These would be large deductions in any establishment and send the wrong message to readers.

tion on the wearer’s clothing, not to protect the wearer from the product. They should never be subjected to pollen, dirt, and bacteria from an outdoor environment – nor ever worn in restrooms.

Another example of lack of proper protection is shown here where the ‘worker’ demonstrates how great the equipment is but is touching the product in a plant setting without wearing gloves and a hair net.

How can we put trust in products when we don’t show the proper protection in print?

And again in this particular photo below: “Let me show you this meat, Sam. No one will notice that we don’t have the proper hair covering. At least we have gloves on! Hey Sam, make sure you get your face right over the product so you can see it better!”

Staged or not, it shows carelessness regarding food safety and would be a hefty deduction in any plant. How can we put trust in products when we don’t show the proper protection in print?

How are we, the food safety experts, going to win over John Q. Public and prove that food is produced in an approved plant with safety in mind when we show something like these types of situations in print? We can only prove that we know what we’re doing by doing the right thing all the time.

The moral is: Watch what you show – a picture is worth a thousand words.

Florida Association for Food Protection: AEC
Reported by Greg Orman, FAFP President

A packed agenda carefully planned by the Florida Association for Food Protection (FAFP) filled three days at their 2010 Annual Educational Conference, held May 4–6. The Newport Beachside Hotel and Resort in Sunny Isles Beach (Miami) hosted the event that kicked off with a Special Global Food Safety Initiative Educational Workshop, “Understanding the Food Safety Management System Standards,” presented by Debby Newslow, Certified Quality Assurance Lead Auditor, Lloyd’s Register Quality Assurance (LRQA); and Tatiana Lorca, Manager of Food Supply Quality Assurance for EcoSure (a division of Ecolab).

On Day 2, Melvin Kramer, FAFP’s Bronson Lane Award recipient, presented the keynote address, “Food Safety: Everyone’s Business – Whose Responsibility?” IAFP President Vickie Lewandowski was on hand to give an update on IAFP. Presentations were given by Donna Garren, VP for Food Safety Programmes for The Consumer Goods Forum; Steve Goodfellow, Deibel Laboratories in Gainesville; and Alan Tart, Microbiologist, USDA.

The student poster session included seven students presenting technical presentations on topics such as Salmonella, chlorine dioxide, and microbial risks of lime slices on beverages. The 2009 FAFP award winners were honored that evening, hosted by Past President Eric Martin.

Closing day showcased best practices in food safety from the quick service restaurant perspective by Robert Foster, Global Platform Leader – Clean & Safe for Burger King Corporation. Three roundtable discussions on advancements in sanitation and food safety were conducted by Tom Ford, VP of Food Safety, Ecolab; Jeff Anderson, Food Safety and Sanitation Consultant, P&G; and Phil Ellis, Food Industry Segment Manager, SE Division of Zep Sales and Service. The Conference concluded with FAFP’s business meeting.

This year, in lieu of speaker gifts, FAFP donated $25 per speaker to the IAFP Foundation.

Texas Association for Food Protection: “Farm to Fork”
Reported by Fred Reimers, TAFP Delegate

An ‘outstanding’ 29th Annual Meeting of the Texas Association for Food Protection (TAFP) took place June 7–9 at the Omni Austin Hotel–Southpark in Austin. Despite the economic downturn, registration was up from the past, with 142 in attendance. All 12 sessions were standing room only – a testament to the hard work of the TAFP Planning Committee.

“Farm to Fork” was the theme throughout, with a diverse lineup of speakers. David Jones, COO of Dairy Farms of America, spoke on “Weathering the Storm.” An update on spices and ingredients concerning recalls and risks was presented by Margaret Hardin from...
TAMU. “Farm to Fork – A Robust Manufacturing QMS” was the topic of John Scott, Sr., Director of H-E-B QA, while Melinda Haymon from Food Safety Net in San Antonio presented “Farm to Fork – Food Micro Challenges;” and Fred Reimers, Creative FoodSafe Solutions, spoke on “GFSI – Farm to Fork Accreditation Standards.” The Conference’s keynote speaker, Frank Yiannas, VP of QA at Walmart, talked about “Changing the Food Safety Culture,” which cemented TAFP’s emphasis on quality management systems and culture change to improve food safety now and in the future.

The CEU course, “Implementing SQF Systems,” had 21 attendees and brought in approximately $4,000 toward TAFP’s scholarship fund, thanks to H-E-B’s SQF Training Center sponsorship. Feedback was nothing but ‘plus plus plusses,’ resulting in Lab short courses to be scheduled for September.

TAFP’s silent auction also raised approximately $2,500 for the scholarship fund. The three-day event concluded with the business meeting.

Bay City, Michigan hosted the Michigan Environmental Health Association’s (MEHA) 2010 Annual Education Conference, held March 24–26 at the Doubletree Hotel–Riverfront. MEHA’s first ‘mega-conference’ attracted environmental health professionals from all over Michigan and beyond. Over 260 participants attended the Conference to hear relevant topics and presentations. Awards were presented during the event to outstanding Members for their contributions to the Association and profession. Award and Recognition recipients were:

- President’s Award
  - Gene Paez
- LaRue L. Miller Life Achievement Award
  - Tom Olson
- Samuel M. Stevenson Sanitarian of the Year Award
  - Regina Young

The British Columbia Food Protection Association (BCFPA) met on April 13 and elected officers for the upcoming year. New officers are:

- President: Elsie Friesen
- Past President: Terry Peters
- Vice President: Alex Montgomery
- Secretary: Michael Mensah-Wilson
- Treasurer: Lorraine McIntyre
- Assistant Treasurer: Dewi Winoto
- Delegate: Terry Peters
- Director: Dewi Winoto
- Director/Student Coordinator: Stephanie Chiu

Past Board Members in supporting roles include:

- Events Coordinator: Shendra Brisdon
- Newsletter Editor: Annette Moore
- Membership Coordinator: Lance Hill

BCFPA also hosted their first Speaker’s Evening on June 15 at the Delta Vancouver Airport Hotel in Richmond, B.C. Featured speakers included Jeffrey Farber, Director of the Bureau of Microbial Hazards, Health Products and Food Branch, Health Canada, who spoke on “Best Practices for Monitoring Listeria in RTE Food Processing Plants: A Review of the Issues at Maple Leaf and Positive Lessons Learned;” and Jovana Kovacevic, Food Safety Specialist, B.C. Centre for Disease Control, who spoke on “Recovery, Detection, and Sanitizer Susceptibility of Listeria spp. in Processing Environments.” Due to a family emergency, Kevin Allen, Assistant Professor, UBC Land and Food Systems, was unable to attend. However, his presentation, “Listeria monocytogenes: Factors Contributing to Survival in Foods and Food Production Environments,” was shown in slide format and well received by the 80 attendees.

The Metropolitan Association for Food Protection (MAFP) held their 2010 Spring Seminar May 5 at the Douglass Student Center, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. Three sessions were held throughout the day: Neal Nover, WinWarm Software, presented “Field-Based Computer Applications for Food Inspections,” describing the applications of WinWarm Food and Drug Inspection Software for conducting retail, wholesale, and specialized food inspections; Gloria Dougherty, Acting Preparedness and Food Defense Coordinator for the Food and Drug Safety Program of the NJDHSS, spoke on “Retail Food Emergency Planning & Emergency Food Distribution,” regarding the roles that retail and wholesale food establishments, as well as local and state health officials have during a natural or man-made emergency; and Tara Paster, Paster Training, Inc., presented “An Interactive Exercise in Food Safety Communication,” conducting tabletop exercises on communication and negotiation between industry and regulatory professionals.

The Spring Conference of the Arizona Environmental Health Association (AEHA) took place June 2–3 in Tempe. Speakers included John Marcello, US-FDA; Christopher Wharton and Dawn Ratcliffe, both with ASU; Craig Levy, Arizona Department of Health Sciences; Todd Cato and Sylvia Gayton, both with Southwest Import District; Adrian Garcia, Consumer Safety Officer; Dale Lieb, Environmental Services Department; Lyle Ferguson and Emory Matts, both with Ecolab; Jeff Anderson, Proctor & Gamble; and Paul Catanzariti, Greg Epperson, and Vas Hofer, all with the Maricopa County Environmental Services Department.

Congratulations to I AFP’s newest Affiliate, the Nebraska Association for Food Protection. NAFP replaces their predecessor, the Nebraska Association of Milk and Food Sanitarians, which has been inactive for several years. The IAFP Board of Directors approved the Charter for NAFP at its April meeting. The Charter will be presented to the Affiliate at IAFP 2010 in Anaheim on August 1.

Officers for NAFP include:

President: Jill Kuzo
Vice President: Lori Byrne
Secretary: Carol Valenzuela
Treasurer: April Field
Delegate: Penny Mack
Directors: Anna Jesus, Jim Tischler, Dan Lynn, Mauricio Redondo
Web Administrator: Marsha Wilderdyke
Contact: Jill Kuzo

The Affiliate’s Web site is now active. For more information on becoming an NAFP Member, go to: www.nefoodprotection.com.
Dublin Conference Sees Increase in Attendance

The Emerald Isle was host to the Sixth IAFP European Symposium on Food Safety, held June 9–11. More than 275 delegates, an increase over 2009’s attendance, participated in this year’s conference in Dublin, Ireland to discuss the latest scientific developments in food safety. Thirty-five invited presentations, along with 18 technical presentations and 85 scientific poster presentations were part of this annual event. Locations and dates are now under consideration for the 2011 IAFP European Symposium.

Southern California Affiliate Shines as Local Arrangements Committee for IAFP 2010

Each year, IAFP receives crucial planning support for its Annual Meeting from food safety professionals who reside in proximity to the location site. The Local Arrangements Committee is a dedicated group that often consists of Members from our Affiliate associations. This year’s committee has worked diligently to ensure that attendees will be provided a memorable experience during their stay in Anaheim. For their time and hospitality, IAFP thanks these loyal professionals from the Southern California Association for Food Protection:

Margaret Burton, Turonda Crumpler, Brian Giannini, Kani Pathmalingam, Scott Barrington, Marty Hoodak-Roose, and Thilde Peterson.

Your Silent Auction Donations are Appreciated

Ready for some serious – and unique – shopping at IAFP 2010? Bring your checkbooks to cruise and choose from among the diverse gifts, souvenirs, and slices of meeting history that will be displayed and for sale in Anaheim.

Thank you to those who donate faithfully each year and have already shipped items directly to us for this year’s auction. Items can also be delivered in person as well; just remember to bring along the completed Silent Auction form, available on our Web site, with your donation.

IAFP PDGs are A-1

IAFP Members are among a variety of those in education, government, and industry who provide networking opportunities for food safety professionals worldwide. By joining a Professional Development Group (PDG), you can filter that network to meet others who share your specialty area, while gaining a different perspective and learning new information and techniques.

Mission statements and names of Members in each PDG can be found on our Web site. PDG meetings begin Saturday afternoon, July 31 with International Food Protection Issues’ “Codex Alimentarius—Past Concerns, Current Issues and Future Prospects.” The following PDGs will meet on Sunday, August 1:
Applied Laboratory Methods
Dairy Quality and Safety
Food Hygiene and Sanitation
Food Law
Seafood Safety and Quality
Pre-Harvest Food Safety
(Organizational Meeting)
Student
3-A Committee on Sanitary Procedures
Food Safety Education
Fruit and Vegetable Safety and Quality
Viral and Parasitic Foodborne Disease
Food Chemical Hazards and Food Allergy
Food Defense (Organizational Meeting)
Microbial Modeling and Risk Analysis
Retail Food Safety and Quality
Water Safety and Quality
Young Professionals (Organizational Meeting)

To find a PDG that meets your needs, call the IAFP office at +1 800.369.6337 or +1 515.276.3344.

IAFP Executive Board Speaker Program for Affiliates

How It Works

1. IAFP Board Members are available to speak at Affiliate meetings on numerous topics involving food safety.

2. Each Affiliate may request one Executive Board speaker for one Affiliate meeting within a 12-month calendar year.

3. A minimum of 15 minutes should be allowed for the Board Member to deliver information about the International Association for Food Protection in addition to their main subject(s) (see #1).

4. IAFP will pay the Board Member’s expense to travel to the Affiliate meeting location.

5. The Affiliate covers local expenses, including meals, lodging, and local transportation for the Board Member.

6. The Board Member makes their own travel reservations and will submit an expense report to the IAFP office within 10 days of completion of their travel to the Affiliate meeting. Any local expense (see #5) will be billed to the Affiliate.

7. A two-month advance notice is required.

8. To invite a Board Member to speak at your Affiliate meeting, contact Susan Smith, IAFP Affiliate Services, at +1 800.369.6337 or +1 515.276.3344; or E-mail ssmith@foodprotection.org
