      ii. Utilize most cited or downloaded.
      iii. David Tharp mentioned that estimated 700 – 800 individuals have opted out of receiving IAFP emails which highlight Food Protection Trends out of total IAFP membership. It may also be likely that emails are going to spam folders (Tim Jackson reported that occurring in his case).
   iv. Matt Taylor discussed open access for peer-reviewed publications also discussed to improve access to non-members.
   v. Sally Klinect mentioned utilizing social media ranging from LinkedIn to Facebook to highlight publications versus other methods, as a means to engage other possible readers.
   vi. Kelly Stevens also recommended utilizing IAFP connect to highlight publications amongst members.
   vii. Salena Parveen recommended reaching out to PDGs to recruit articles for high-level or conducting special topics. Cathy Cutter has mentioned that she has focused on having special issues.
   viii. Jennifer Quinlan says that the messaging for FPT should market itself as a solution for sharing applied science.
   ix. Jessica Chen mentioned relying upon students to both increase their awareness of the journal as an option for publishing their work. She also mentioned reaching to highlight research to other food-safety minded groups.
   x. Cathy Cutter mentioned sharing JFP’s booth on the floor with FPT.
   d. Matt Taylor also discussed increasing international outreach.
      i. Montserrat Iturriaga mentioned a brief video highlight, which could be shared would help draw people to FPT.
      ii. Martin Martinez also mentioned that the focus iii. Roger Cook also mentioned some countries have a similar publication which are more focused on their regulations and needs, which are very country–specific. Some counter-discussion on desires and needs to see research from across countries, allowing groups from differing countries to see what others were doing and adopt needed information to their specific country’s needs.

iv. The group agreed upon formation of a sub-committee to Jennifer Quinlan, Cathy Cutter, Pardeepinder Brar, Jessica Chen, Dennis D’Amico, Sheridan Brewer, and Byron Chavez along with Matt Taylor will continue to pursue strategies increase journal visibility among IAFP members.

4. 2019 Executive Board recommendations.
   a. The Committee recommends to the Executive Board that a General Interest paper be prepared and submitted for publication in Food Protection Trends detailing the outcomes of the Scientific Integrity meeting and best practices as detailing the working group’s soon to be published manuscript. The FPT paper should detail the best practices, identify IAFP’s ongoing programs that aid in addressing and implementing identified best practices, and identify areas where IAFP can assist its members in adhering to best practices. Board agreed, but this will need to be generated by someone from ILSI or the Scientific Integrity Group.
      1. It is recommended that we follow-up with ILSI to see if this would be of interest.

New Business:
1. Appointment of Vice Chairperson – Byron Chavez was nominated as Vice Chair by M. Taylor. He ascended to the position by acclamation.
2. Reappointment of Cathy Cutter as FPT Scientific Editor.
   a. Nomination by Kelly Stevens and seconded by Christine Wilson. Cathy Cutter was re-appointed to another 5-year term.
3. Types of articles for publication in FPT.
   i. Is the scope of the journal appropriate for its intended mission?
   ii. Matt Taylor discussed one instance where a reviewer mentioned that consumer-based food safety research was not appropriate for publication in FPT earlier in 2019. Cathy reported that reviewer was invited to committee meeting to describe/discuss their concerns but the reviewer was not attending.
   iii. Christine Bruhn mentioned that this was likely an outlying opinion as consumer food safety research is both appropriate and needed.
   iv. Group agreed that the scope and description of articles appropriate for FPT is in alignment with the Journal’s mission.
4. JFP Recommended Articles to FPT.

a. Cathy Cutter mentioned that while authors are redirected from JFP to submit articles which are not going to be published there in FPT, however this has not really matured into a viable conduit for receiving publications. Roger Cook mentioned that authors may then search out other journals.

5. Enhancing the visibility of FPT.

b. Brainstorming ideas have been generated as recorded above. Any additional ideas should be shared with Matt Taylor. The sub-committee will continue to work on this important task.

c. Dennis D’Amico asked if articles could be accessed for free once they are past a certain age they could be accessed for free. Cathy Cutter mentioned that they are currently open access after 5 years. There was a discussion if this timeline should be eliminated entirely – all articles are open-access upon acceptance. Betty Feng asked what the timeline between acceptance and publication is. Cathy Cutter said 3 – 4 months.

Numbered List of Recommendations to the Executive Board:

1. Appointment of Byron Chaves as Vice Chair for Food Protection Trends.

2. Reappointment of Cathy Cutter to another 5-year term as Scientific Editor of Food Protection Trends.

3. Articles published in FPT will become open access immediately upon publication.

4. Editing FPT instructions for authors to include a paragraph in the instructions for authors to remove bibliographic field codes to alleviate issues in editing.

5. Food Protection Trends should share a booth on expo floor alongside Journal of Food Protection to promote journal to membership at 2020 IAFP Annual Meeting in Cleveland, OH.

Next Meeting Date: August 2, 2020, Cleveland, Ohio.

Meeting Adjourned: 3:59 p.m.
